As the week of final exams approach, we would like to offer you some suggestions, adapted from collegeuniversity.suite101.com, for surviving and acing your exams!

1. Time Management—Get out your calendar and schedule your week. Stick to the schedule!
2. Schedule in study breaks—You’ll feel much better and be able to concentrate much better!
3. Schedule in sleep—You’ll do much better if you’re not falling asleep on your exam book!
4. Exercise—Don’t exercise so much that you’re avoiding studying, just take a short break for a quick game of basketball or a walk.
5. Prioritize—Decide which exams need the most study time, but make sure you spend time on each of them!
6. Form effective study groups—Don’t waste time studying with people who don’t really study!

7. Ask your professor for help—He is the expert after all! Don’t wait until the last minute, though!
8. Keep things in perspective—Excessive stress will make you crazy and hurt your performance, so try to relax as much as you can!

Happy studying and good luck!

Commuter All-Call

We are putting out an all-call for any and all commuters who are interested in going back to their high schools and talking to current students about being a commuter at WVU!

You would be forming and facilitating relationships with school counselors and accompanying members of the WVU staff to talk to students about your WVU experience!

This is a great opportunity to help WVU get some new faces and to build up the commuter population!

If you are interested, contact Brian Walker at Brian.Walker@mail.wvu.edu for more information.

The only qualifications are that you must be willing to speak to a large group of high school students and be excited about WVU!
“What is important is to keep learning, to enjoy challenge, and to tolerate ambiguity. In the end there are no certain answers.”
- Martina Horner

“We all need someone who inspires us to do better than we know how.”
